111 This is why Trump called for a gathering and why he was so fiery in his speech. If we don't stand up ▼ right now we lose it. If Pence fails his duty then watch Trump declare an emergency and do it the hard way.

Confirmed, it was the east side of the building where barriers were breached and battled up to the door. The west side of the building is where everyone got inside without a skirmish.

Source: I was there too.

But not debunked? Seriously, Trump is the law and order president. He was not calling for violence in any way today. Not to say he is incapable, I just think he is slow walking to expose all the traitors he can to build more support for when the law has run its full course and requires violence to proceed past it.

▼ A mess it will be, but a mess that can be cleaned up without other interfering. Right now if these people are left in then it will be the same mess while being constantly interfered, adding more, and then having others outside of us adding their own mess to our pile.

There is only 2 choices:

Sit back, relax, and wait for the mess to continue as always, or take care of it now and mitigate a far worse and larger mess in the future.

There is no clean way at this point.

38 No, he signed a letter stating he would not unilaterally decide who is President. Nobody sane ever thought he would do that. It does NOT say that he wont send it back to the states and force them to look at the problems.
People are getting ahead of themselves. I don't know what Pence will do, but of course whatever action he takes he will say is constitutional. He wasn't going to come out and say "I intend to violate the constitution".

21 He accepted the Biden slate of electors from AZ. It will never go back to the state at this point. It's all handled by US congress now. 60 republicans (Senators and reps combined) have objected to it. They are debating it now and AT LEAST 220 reps and 51 Senators (Including VP Pence) have to vote to nullify the AZ electoral votes. It won't happen.

1 I want what you say to be true, but the VP quotes a court of appeals judge Ludwig who  this: "the only authority and power of the VP under the Constitution is to faithfully count C votes as they have been cast" and adds "the Constitution does not empower the VP to  n any way, the votes that have been cast, either by rejecting certain votes or otherwise."

Earlier in his statement, Pence states that the VP's role is "largely ceremonial" and then "he will balanced on the fence right now, but what I'm reading is leaning to Pence's inaction.

▼ Why does this post only have 13 upvotes. These do not sound like the words of a traitor and after reading it everyone claiming him to be a traitor seems suspect.

That being said I slept most of the day. So now I'm trying to get caught up on all that has happened. It seems like dark days are upon us but I'm not sure how much of what I've been reading is true or propaganda.

When everyone 'passes the buck' rather than exercising authority they were put in power to do is

Courts have no standing

Legislatures shrugging their shoulders

Executive point fingers

No, I'm sorry. You ran for office, you ran for the responsibility. You don't get to pass the buck.
